It's a little comforting to know that someone else has this problem! I must have tiny ears. I get the smallest earbuds I can and I use the tiniest little tip they offer. But it's like my ears just reject the earbuds. I can't listen to anything for having them pop out and then needing to stick the little things back in my ear!

Do the hook over the ears kind stay still? It seems like to me that they would just bounce around like regular headphones.
