Subject: Re: how do Heil drivers work
Posted by Wayne Parham on Wed, 16 Oct 2013 18:03:04 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I haven't looked at one closely. But if it has one diaphragm and the front and back are exposed, then it is a dipole.

If it has two diaphragms, or any other mechanism that can pressurize the front and rear surfaces in phase, then it is a bipole.