Yes, the way that BB is constructed is what makes it such a good material for cabinet material.
I do not know a ton about the Bamboo Plywood but from what I have read and the bit that I have seen in person it also appears to be very well made with virtually no voids.
It is definitely very hard and stable stuff, much heavier to lift than the same size sheet of BB.

It would be very interesting to see if there would be any sonic difference with a BB cabinet next to a BP one.

Anybody else out there trying Bamboo Ply?
