Last night my husband was putting up YouTube music on the TV. I like the music, usually, but he always has it too loud. I suffered through the Pink Floyd album at way too much volume. But after the second Mozart tune at a million decibels I shouted, "This is not Rock and Roll! It is not meant to be listened to at that volume!"

I'm seriously thinking the man needs a hearing aid.

I think my husband needs a hearing aid too, and he's not even 40. He listens to everything so loudly and it drives me crazy.
