

---

Subject: Re: Target security breach

Posted by gofar99 on Tue, 28 Jan 2014 20:50:28 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

A can of worms for sure. I went to the bank and got a new debit card before anything bad could occur. It doesn't address the long term problem though. One of the best answers I have encountered is to get the temporary bank cards that have appeared in the past few years. They are not linked to anything except the amount of money you put into it. Gift cards might work as well except the fees that tend to go with them. I figure we should just shoot the guys that do this and it might make others think twice. A death penalty for identity theft might be in order as the thief is not the person he claims to be so therefor should be terminated.

Edit...where I'm heading might be better in Dungeon

---