I'm with you on the carburetors and distributors. Back in the 1970s, I used to tell my hotrod buddies that we could do a lot with microcontrollers. And now, of course, everyone does. But just for fun, my own personal ride has a Holley and distributor. Even has points, but I cheat a little bit 'cause I use the points to drive a power transistor, and that's what energizes the coil. Never pits the points that way.
