Oh, trust me, I am learning a lot from this site. I spend a lot of time just reading and studying some of the schematics that different people have shared. My main focus is audio repair. I was wondering about online courses that would lead to a degree or some type of certification.