On the piano especially, reading the notes and matching them to the keys is something that is easy to pick up on. At least it was for me back in junior high. I have long since forgotten the method, but I do remember that it was easy to pick up on.
I have previously had a difficulty learning how to read the notes but this was because I was not allocating much time to this task. It shouldn't be so hard reading these notes on the piano. Looks like a concept that a serious person can easily grasp.
