Bummer. So are you wondering about physical replacement? Have you opened it up to see how it is mounted? Or are you worried about finding the tube? Now that I think about it, I'm all questions and really no help am I? I know some eye tubes are sort of scarce, but I would expect you'd be able to find replacements. If nothing else, I would expect Cary would sell you a tube. I'll bet the guys at VTV would too, and now that I think about it, there are probably plenty of other sources. Have you seen Eric Barbour's article on eye tubes? If you haven't already seen it, check it out - It's interesting and has some great information.
