Subject: Effect of handheld screens on child development
Posted by mamoss on Sat, 03 Jun 2017 06:30:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

We all agree that today's modern kid has a lot more at his or her disposal in comparison to say, a 90s kid. A recent study found out that the more time kids aged between six months and two years spent on devices such as electronic games, smartphones and tablets the more likely they were to experience speech delays.

Do you think technology has an effect on their social development?