I have a loose wire in a headlamp assembly on my car. Eventually, I am going to have to replace it.

I remember when I was younger I would do this to speaker wires when our cat decided that wires tasted good.

The skill needed to fix that part of a car can also be used here for audio work.

So next time you find yourself wondering if you can do a specific task on a stereo, ask yourself if you have done comparable work on something else.

Chances are you have.
