I'm sure we've all been guilty of having a song we don't like stuck in our heads. This happens to me on a regular basis. Actually, sometimes the fact that it gets stuck in my head for so long actually makes me dislike the song. That's how I ended up not being a huge fan of Adele. Her songs are catchy (making them easy to repeat over and over in my head) and they were also way overplayed at the beginning of her career. So, the instant a song of her's would get out of my head, I would hear it on the radio and then the cycle would repeat. What songs or artists have had this effect on you?
