Subject: TV upgrades happen so fast
Posted by mamoss on Mon, 17 Dec 2018 14:15:51 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

When purchasing a TV set, you can never be sure about how long it will take for the same company to introduce the newest technology. Most people are usually tempted to keep on upgrading though this can be costly, in the long run. Would it make more sense for companies to manufacture sets that can be upgraded without the need to initiate a new purchase or has this been tried and tested before?