Yes. Netflix. I used the free period to evaluate it. And after enjoying just a smidgen of their offerings cancelled. I'm a cheapskate though, and on a fixed income now, so, if I'm paying for something, I want to use it. Never tried radio subscription. If I drove a lot I suppose I could appreciate it's offerings. I think it's interesting how services now are pay to play. It's becoming pervasive. Seems to me, ones budget could get compromised if you didn't keep a check on all these monthly service charges becoming cumulatively a burden.
