Do you know if it's possible to replicate that picture frame look? The last Samsung I bought stung me pretty badly. I know this model isn't a smart television, but I just don't want to give them anymore of my money.
Evervue's Spectrum and Decovue-Renaissance has probably come the closest, but at the moment both of these are more expensive than the Samsung model. I haven't figured out a way to DIY it without there being a noticeable gap between the television, frame, and wall. The Samsung Frame is a smart television, so are the Evervue models I mentioned. If a TV can showcase art without you inserting a USB drive or something else that contains that art, it's using the internet to get it.
