

---

Subject: Re: Best Stephen King book to movie adaption

Posted by Rusty on Thu, 05 Sep 2019 20:35:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Not many of Kings horror books have translated well into film for me. Those two outside that realm were top notch for me. Especially Shawshank. The Green mile was a fine supernatural film also for me. For his horror genre, I like a short story he did called, The Mist. That was a tense, paranoiac study of people taking sides and becoming barbarous with one another in the face of incomprehensible weird creatures taking over the landscape. With good special effects. The irony of the ending was compelling.

---