

---

Subject: Re: Best Stephen King book to movie adaptations

Posted by Madison on Sun, 15 Sep 2019 22:12:09 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Rusty wrote on Thu, 05 September 2019 15:35 I like a short story he did called, The Mist. That was a tense, paranoiac study of people taking sides and becoming barbarous with one another in the face of incomprehensible weird creatures taking over the landscape. With good special effects. The irony of the ending was compelling.

I haven't read Stephen King's book, but the movie was good. I especially loved the black and white director's cut that came out in 2017.

---