There are two types of musical productions: One produced by Daniel Lanois, and the others that are not.

To hear the difference will answer the question. No. It's not all in your head. You may or may not like the sound of the music the way he produces it, but there is no denying there is a presentable and clear difference.

If you have any questions, listen to "Most Of The Time", and then anything else Dylan did without Lanois.
