Bruce's Philco really does look nice, doesn't it? :p

Wow, thanks for that link! I've purchased a lot of stuff from Antique Electronic Supply over the years. They used to have cloth insulated wire and quite a selection of grille cloth that matched the original of many radios. And they had lots of nice knobs and escutcheons too. But I think they've thinned out their antique supplies over the years, leaning more towards guitar amps and general tube amp stuff. Still a great place, but I think your link might be better for restorations now.
