I don't know about that Penguin. When I worked in healthcare. I'd personally size up patients as being either barnyard or pasture sized. The greatest girthed patient we had was 840 lbs. It wasn't unusual to have a 400+ pasture sized patient in house at anyone time. Our c.t. scanner went up to 425 lbs., so anyone over the limit I rejoiced not having to throw my back out dealing with.
