My son has been driving me crazy lately with wanting to post videos to YouTube. They are all videos of him playing his farming simulator Xbox game. He can't get this to work or that to work and then when he figures it out, something else stops him. It's comical and annoying at the same time. By the time he gets the first one posted, he will be a pro. I'm not sure why anyone would want to watch videos on someone playing a farming video game.
