I was away and computer-less this weekend, hence my response now. Actually, I enjoyed Allison Steele. The name arose somehow as an affectionate moniker, albeit a juvenile one, among my friends when we were in ninth or tenth grade (1969-70). Hell, we did a lot more stupid things back then. I am certainly NOT one of those to whom the Bob Dylan lines apply: "I was so much older then, I'm younger than that now."
