On the internet, I found a Ham radio station in the Netherlands that plays dance beats/music 24/7. I also found a station a few hundred miles away from me that was just static. Another one a little over a thousand miles away that played nothing.

I just find it fun sometimes to randomly try things that may or may not work, then finding a certain juxtaposition in it all.

Ham radio on the internet. What will they think of next?

Streema.com was the site.
