If engineers had their way things would sure be different. The CEO's & Board of Directors have the say unfortunately. I used to think Boeing was the trusted leader in aircraft design and safety. The 737 Max disaster changed all that. A token of accountability with the CEO bailing out in his golden parachute. No real legal judgement for this boardroom debacle came to be. Shocker. I'd pause to be riding in one of them things now. Like Mickey Jupp sang.
