I think our popular culture is as wide and deep enough to make a little fun of the holiday cheer as well. There's been some movies made to exploit a bit of "dark" Christmas themes in the cheesy horror realm. Even the Griswold's Christmas comedy had an underlying theme of family holiday get togethers not being the rosy wholesome gathering usually depicted.

I heard this little number several years back, and it's perversely stuck with me for this time of year. Not your average Christmas song. Western Caravan, Psycho Santa.
