You have my sympathy Bruce for a truly damndable situation. Glad your granddaughter escaped any lasting harm from it. Thanks to the care and training of the local ER staff. Who have to deal with this type of situation every day no doubt.
Hopefully the chronically delusional types will become more and more a minority as this world event plays out. I can only hope we become wiser and more able to take on the rest of the seemingly unresolvable problems plaguing our civilization.
But on your now personal level. You know now most distinctly what this man said from his experience.
