I have a daily calendar that is a bit different from most. It is "inspirational", but backwards. It presents the opposite concepts of most uplifting calendars. It forces you to think about stuff. Today's sentiment was "The dinosaurs died off millions of years ago. Things have gone downhill since then". An interesting thought. Back then all you had to deal with was finding something to eat and watching out for things that might eat you. An occasional bit of hooky pokey insured the survival of the species. Life was apparently good as dinosaurs hung in there for millions of years. I hope we are as lucky considering that we have only been here for a far shorter time period and have found numerous ways to end our existence. :?
