Thanks for the answer Wayne. 10-32 would be an equivalent of M5 over here, I can get the t-nuts and try to locate a screw with a suitable screw head size.

PL is not available here so I had the idea of using gorilla glue for this purpose. It is self expanding and requires wet surfaces. I am reading in DIY forums that it's a good solution for gluing t-nuts.

Others solutions available here include standard epoxy glue and construction adhesives. Let me know your thoughts.
