Given a heads up by my sister and using their sign in to Sling to watch, (with too many damn commercials), The Old Man on the FX channel. Pretty good thriller series with Jeff Bridges and John Lithgow. Essentially a former special OP's specialist, (Bridges) is forced out of retirement and on the run by ne'er-do-wells to settle old scores. Lithgow is another geezer who worked with Bridges in the past now trying to capture him.
Too many geezer honcho movies and series have depicted them as having such almost super hero abilities to dispatch their foes. Bridges gets the crap beat out of him as he yet still has the wheezing skills and a couple of faithful hounds to finally vanquish the young Turks trying to capture or kill him.
Lots of layered intrigue as to why this is happening after decades of being buried history. Now I gotta find out.
