We all woke up today to find the sun was shining, the birds were chirping and all was well except AudioRoundTable.com was down.

Well, I guess all probably wasn't really well with the world, but I'm sticking with my story as it is.

The database had crashed so we restored with the most recent automated nightly backup. But the database had crashed before that, and the backup data was garbage.

So we restored with the nightly backup from two nights ago.

That means whatever posts were made yesterday are now lost to the winds of time.

All jokes aside, please accept our apologies for the lost posts. Try to remember what you said and re-post. Hopefully there weren't too many lost novellas, and that most were just quick quips that are easy to remember and redo.
