My laptop, using right now. A cheap Walmart Acer. The plastic shell is and has been falling apart for some time. I've super glued and use small paper spring clips to hold together the frame around the screen. I'm going to use the damn thing till it no longer boots up. I don't even have a cell phone plan now. The one that was given to me by a relative after an upgrade is now incompatible they say with existing plans. I don't seem to care about what's current, faster, more gigs, more apps or any of it all. Hopelessly archaic now I guess.
I'm very certain you would never do that to one of your turntables.
