
Subject: Re: Happy Mother's Day!

Posted by johnnycamp5 on Tue, 16 May 2023 11:15:48 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

We'll....I could certainly put a throw carpet front and center to tame some of the the high frequency floor "splash" that's likely to occur. Although those tweeters are no less than 5 feet up off the ground.

Glad you like the exposed collar ties. I do too. I took some brief flak from some of my folks during the drywall phase, they argued why I didn't just rock across the BOTTOM of the ties instead of going up and around them. It certainly would have been easier that way, drywalling up and around them precisely was certainly way more of a bullshit hassle.

But again, my audiolism wouldn't allow me to give up on all the extra ceiling space. I can now mount broad band absorbers between each collar tie (or diffusers) if I choose, and still maintain approximately 10 feet of clearance.

Those are all of my hats lol. Only the top one is a pretty good one (Stetson).

Use it on Sundays or special occasionsjust used it at the old man's 80th birthday party

So true about the Wives. Unfair to overlook them on Mother's Day!!
