I acquired two full 4 pi kits from someone going a different direction. All products new with premium built crossovers

I sourced two JBL 2226 hpl woofers from a local used music instrument store.

I need to start sourcing parts to make a 3rd for the center channel. I've seen the posts to remove the port and to center the horn. Is this still correct, or should the port be moved somewhere else?

Is there any changes to the crossover that needs to happen? I couldn't find anything in the FAQ.

Is there a preferred method of raising the speakers. I have access to some large beams and could do solid wood risers. Or something different?

Thanks.
