It doesn't bother me at all to watch programs while I'm in motion. It feels like time goes faster when I pop in a film on the way. I remember watching the Home Alone franchise series while riding on Greyhound several years ago. Each seat had its own viewing screen. I thought it was pretty neat. Of course, today I'd likely use my phone or tablet to view a show, but back then, it was really cool to see that feature on the bus.
