We'll be bringing something "new" to LSAF 2024:

Funny thing is this speaker was actually the result of a 2019 design effort, so it's not really all that new. It's about five years old.

You can read about it in the thread called, "Definimax 4012HO - End of Life." Eminence had discontinued their high-end drivers with shorting rings, so I needed a high-quality replacement and this loudspeaker is the result.

But while I was getting close to the finishing touches of this design in June 2019, before I had the chance to unveil it, the corona-weirdness started and I haven't been to a show since.

I had a little thing in my head that I'd have a "Ford versus Ferrari" pair in my stables, with the four "Ferrari," having all-Italian drivers.

But then, last year, B&C bought Eminence making them more of a multi-national company. :lol:

think it's sexy as hell!
