Private equity likes to kill things. Sears, Toy R Us. And a lot of medical. I know first hand from that. I've read it isn't just McIntosh. But more legacy name audio companies might fade from our collective memory. I guess many audio companies have been picked up several times and now may be their sayonara. What else, low sales volume.
The old stereo biz we all grew up with and seen their gradual decline may be put to rest finally. RIP, Klipsch, Denon, B&W. At least McIntosh gets a reprieve for awhile.
