My wife might've mumbled something about the man flu a time or two under her breath, Madison, but I swear I'm rarely sick like this. I just can't seem to shake it. At least I'm lucky enough to work from home. Good shout out on Cheers. I caught a few of those episodes, which helped while away the hours. It's hard to believe that Kristie Alley is gone now. She was so full of life and truly stunning back then. She lost her glow when she joined up with Scientology.

Rusty, I've made it through the first three episodes of the show. I'm dying to see whether he escapes. Does it really only have one season? Have you ever seen the remake? You should check out The Day of the Jackal. It's on Peacock, and I bet it'll be right up your alley. It's a fantastic thriller about an assassin and the agent that's trying to catch him. I know that it probably sounds like an overdone trope, but this show is a cut above the rest.

Wayne, I can't get into Supernatural, but Lincoln Lawyer looks good. I'm going to tackle that one next. Thanks for the recommendations.
