Brane Audio (Room 226)

Brane Audio produces a small system, which is about the size of a table radio but is designed to receive streaming digital content. It contains a subwoofer that uses a technology called a repel-attract driver, which is fairly complicated compared to conventional single voice coil drivers. Specifically, it uses a pair of voice coils and an external air pump to bias the suspension. This allows a very small cabinet volume to be used than other subwoofers.

Bottom line is this thing rocks!
