Visiting friends is one of the best ways that I use to cure boredom. I don't like sleeping at noon, and that means it is out of the equation.

So, when I go on a short walk to my friend's place and by the time we are done gisting about ladies' stuff, the night must have reached. I will just go back home, make dinner, eat, and have some chats with some online friends.

This has been the way that I've been handling being bored for a long time as it helps me to protect my mental health.
