Welcome Walter.

I recently completed a pair of 7pi corner horns and long ago completed my 2pi surrounds and 4pi center channel.

I think you would be happy with corner horns as long as you move around the back of the room mostly. I lose all phantom center imaging if I get too close to them. My media room where they live is about 16' x 24' with the speakers on the short wall. Pics in my recent thread

I have an old pair of Bose 901's (oh, the horror, audiophiles) in my shop which work nicely with their diffuse soundfield. They have little imaging to speak of but they sound very consistent no matter where I am in the shop. And they can crank if I want to jam.

Food for thought...
