It always brought old memories of having those songs in the 80s each time I heard them being played in the shopping malls as I go about picking the items that I needed to buy. I support malls playing some of these classics often

I'm not that guy who would be more about enjoy some of those old songs when I am shopping, but it is heart warming when I see my dad nodding his head in excitement if he came shopping with me and some of those classic songs are being played. It is always a beauty to behold.
