Subject: Re: Which is Better, Tube Amps or Solid-State Amps?
Posted by Hank on Sat, 06 Jun 2026 06:41:19 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I like solid-state amps more and have made use of a lot of them for most of my music and movie experiences.

I've got the Boss Katana 100 and Quilter Mach 3, and these amps offer clarity when in use irrespective of the type of music that you are playing. If you add the fact that you don't spend much in maintaining solid-state amps like what we see with tube amps where you replace tubes every 7 to 8 months, then I think one would agree with me that my decision to go with solid-state amps was the right one.