Besides Mend It Mark, I found this other fellow on the tube that fixes up old, used and some abused audio pieces he's bought in 2nd hand stores or even found in dumpsters or peoples basements and crawl spaces.

Unlike Mend it Mark, this young feller isn't trained but a hands on learner with some old electronic gear to help him diagnose and repair some rather nice pieces of audio. And some just cheap that can be fixed. Even cars now I see. Nice to see some young one interested in sustainable consumerism.
