So Charley; what is it you are trying to say?Wasn't he the comedian with the fuzzy hair who talks in a monotone?

You're thinking of Stephen Wright: the voice on the radioin Reservoir Dogs. Great casting in that film, but I don'tcare for his humor.I don't know what the original poster meant either.It's the kind of lyrics and artwork you find on second tieralternative pop recordings i.e vanity labels IMHO.

is one funny SOB. Think Martin Mull circa 1975, but much funnier IMO.Very talented guitarist, with a voice that might have been legit if the folk craze was still around - but Lynch is more like John Bellushi in Animal House - he's the guy who'd have smashed the folk singer's guitar against the stairway wall.

It's a portion of one of his song lyrics.

In a literal sense? Saginaw, MIIn a "where did you hear about him" sense? First on Opie & Anthony. Since then I took a bunch of my kids and their friends to see him live, and Comedy Central, of course.
