Got all the audio components in their boxes. Made room by the door for lots more boxes. Leaving '70 Miles From Nowhere' on Tuesday to move to Candler, North Carolina, just outside of Asheville, FINALLY! Can you believe Spkrman57 is going to help me load, drive my truck down and help me unload just out of friendship? Awesome! After 6 months of trying, couldn't get HD to help with a transfer so I said bye-bye and went over to the competition, Lowes. They rule in N.C., anyway, being their home base. New employer means no vacations in '08, so, unfortunately, no LSAF for me. Renting a house instead of an apt. will make it much easier for me to woodwork; looking forward to more speaker projects. Wayne, time to design a 60Hz basshorn for us to build to go with the mid-horn for a 100+ efficient system.

That's awesome, Bill! As a customer, I think Lowes is better so I hope they're better as an employer too. That's really great of Ron to help out with the move. Too cool. You'll definitely be missed at LSAF this year but hopefully the N.C. beaches will warm you up this summer. Renting a house is definitely a plus, 'specially since you'll be able to setup a shop. Excellent!

Good Luck! I left Ohio in '79 for the sunbelt and have not looked back.

First Steve Brown leaves Columbus, Ohio for Oklahoma. And now Bill is leaving for NC. So now I have lost my amp/preamp builder and a woodworker/cabinet maker. On the bright side, I have 2 friends living in Ashville, NC. Last audiophile left standing in Ohio!!! Ron Ron tries to forget that the 'Natti is in Ohio. Without us around, duh Browns are the best football team in the state.....

Hope to visit your neck of the sand as soon as I can, which will be later than sooner. Save a wild horse for me.

No... I mean, "here" in the forum. I am in Portugal (at the beach also...), no wild horses though. (*pic. Carcavelos beach - old 80s/90s)

Bill and I arrived in NC this evening. Suffice to say that Bill will have much to say about having me assist him. I can be very "pressing" when wanting to finish up an unpleasant project. We loaded in Mansfield Monday night with Thanks to Pete who came and assisted us when it was not convenient for him. Tuesday morning we headed out on the road. Made pretty good time all things considered. Tuesday evening, very exhausted after 10 hours on the road. Tomorrow I head over and help unload the truck. A friend of mine I knew for quite some time lives in NC nearby and will be taking me back home. Further adventures follow!!!! LOL!!!! Regards, Ron Will follow up when back in Ohio.

Mission is now completed for me. Unloading the truck took less than 2 hrs with my friend Dave helping out. Took the truck back and Bill has a house full of boxes to contend with! Ron
