Subject: Blade Trinity
Posted by lon on Wed, 20 Jul 2005 19:49:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I thought this was the best of the Blades, though I have notgone back to analyze each one.I got some good laughs at some of the dialogue.But I think Wes is getting too old for these action shows.He's not Rudy Ray Moore after all. And that merkin on his forehead was looking like a bad cosmetic job in a sceneor too.Still, the weaponry was interesting, the dialog was fairlysmart as one would expect from good comic book or othercraftsman writing, and the new characters: Blade The Next Generationseemed to have some style.However they did 'go to the well' by putting a child in danger...and a baby as well. I always recall what Ebert said about that:it's unconscionable to use threats to children as a plot device.Think of Dakota Fanning is any number of releases includingWar of The Worlds.For me, it's back to watching past dvd seasons of Stargate SG1.I admit it. I'm hooked on these. They have a beginning, a middle and an end, last only 45 minutes and don't haveany commercials. After not watching any tv for 10 years orso, I have quite a bit of fresh meat in the form of dvdtv seasons to sate my desire for sf shows.

Subject: Re: Blade Trinity
Posted by Wayne Parham on Thu, 21 Jul 2005 11:13:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I dug the Blade movies too. Liked 'em all.