Subject: Hunter Thompson
Posted by Manualblock on Sat, 20 Aug 2005 18:00:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well; Gonzo goes out with a bang today. He is to be shot out of that cannon at noon. No one ever saw the movie Fear and Loathing?

Subject: Re: Hunter Thompson
Posted by wunhuanglo on Sat, 20 Aug 2005 21:33:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In Las Vegas? Read the book and saw the movie; hate to be "one of those" but forget the movie - the book's a lot better story. I loved Depp's portrayal, but it's not enough.

Subject: Re: Hunter Thompson
Posted by Manualblock on Sun, 21 Aug 2005 12:24:51 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I agree but I did like the fact that the dialogue was taken verbatim from the book. After all the real value of Hunter was just a simple love of language. Sort of what drives all the best writers IMO.Just finished "Death Comes For The Archbishop." Forgot how a book about religion could actually be moving and beautifull with not one sentence of preaching to be found. I would think that is the best counter to the people who dislike the Da Vinci thing. To me if I were a religous person; that would explain what it is all about.