The funniest part, to me, is that a very good engineer would play hell to measure the difference that these nitwits claim to HEAR! and to hear when it represents one component in a chain of 1000 interacting with each other. It's just the most incredible self delusion since psychic surgery.

in some ways i have to respect their experiences,because i havent had similar,nor opposite experiences with similar things..ive had 1 system,no 'upmarket parts' nor different cables. I would like to test cables and parts just to see if i experience the same things they do,if i did,id investigate psycho acoustics more.If i didnt,i could lay the thing to restits all about keeping science as your foundation,otherwise your lost in the winds of audiophilia

I'll offer these two guidelines from Carl Sagan¹. It's good to keep your mind open, but not so open that your brains fall out.² Extradoniry claims require extraordinary evidence. The anti-DBT crowd is hilarious - it's perpetually a case of "just because I can't hear it doesn't mean it's not worth a month's pay per foot".
