Is everyone aware of the shenanigans they pulled on the military? The allegations are They accepted a contract to provide communications equipment systems for the Navy; then used that program to dump all their un-wanted excessed drivers and parts. No quality control and no parts inventory and a high failure rate. Nuff said; just do a google search. Funny how integrity is a thread that runs through every aspect of an individuals existence; if you have it it manifests in everthing you do. And if you don't the opposite is true.

I just tried that--nothing but a GAO report claiming that Bose was a well-managed supplier. Link?(this story wouldn't surprise me, Bose has been selling overpriced crap (and suing their critics) for decades.)

It seems the Air Force cancelled their contract mid-way through the production run and the whole business is sealed. Try Intellectual.net/bose. I do not make these allegations just repeat from the public record.

Knowing Bose, they'll now advertise that their equipment is such high quality that they can supply the military.
