Now, this is a good theme for the "Dungeon" forum, but not for the "Grup Build", I`m afraid...Spleen (poetical), depression (medical), nihilism (philosophical), Luddism (political), or just laziness (common sense/mom)? Don`t know, but I just can`t solder any more:-). Or read and write about it.Of course, there`re some rational reasons, like still can`t get that custom PT, time & money problems, boring forums, etc.But, maybe my religious beliefs don`t allow me to work too hard...

Boy; you are an interesting guy. Here in America people have a tendancy to avoid telling the truth about themselves. I see you don't have that problem. I have to agree; some of the forums are getting boring, it seems all we see is self absorbed narcissists posting pictures of themselves and their equipment while offering nothing of any use.But Spleen; grab a copy of Atlas Shrugged ; and a Luddite; just beat up a bus.Your a Nihilist? You should rent the movie Night Of The Living Dead.Maybe you should go out and persecute a few heretics; you know , to keep busy.Why can't you get the Transformer; and if you are in fact a luddite; then be careful you don't destroy it when it comes.To Solder is to live.

Some irony is present in my speech, false pompous tone, a little "joke" about thematics and the tone of various forums/jurnalistic/politic things, and myself, too.Nihilism, as I remember the "definition" by Nietzche is "radical loss of any sense - it`s the history of the 20th and 21st century".And "why you can`t get the Transformer"- is it some kinky "surfers" slang/joke?:-) If you actually mean electric transformer - then it`s really kinky... I ordered PT from an reputable Dutch company...but they answer E-mails only on Mondays from 7-7.30 a.m., one or max. two sentences - my experience. Impossible communication. I`m still waiting:-). But not for long.

I got the jokes; thats why I replied. If I didn't think they were jokes I would have passed them by. I thought it was a great combination of intuitive self-awareness and personal humility for you to make that post. In other words that post was really funny and that caused me to reply. I caught the faux pomposity and the irony; believe me there was no mis-understanding.So I offered my attempt at a humorous reply; the Luddite's hated modern machines ; so I offer you should only kill a bus; you know that sort of thing. Nietzche is the father of 20th century angst; so I say watch Night of The Living Dead. Those are my little jokes.The Transformer question was serious; no hidden meaning; I just wanted to know why it took so long.

Thanks...It`s no easy for me to express myself on English...not to mention the grammar:-)I watched old film by Romero (?), one of the classics of B-movies, but today I watch (almost) only Buffy, she`s my hero...Those paradox things... Remember "Perfect day" song, from "Transformer" album, Lou Reed? "High" on beautiful emotions/love, and then you realized that`s some other kind of "high", and song ended with "You`re going to reap just what you sow"... but, this "warning" is so lazy, relaxed and "high", too...Great moment of r`n`r, I liked it a lot - but I can`t listen to it anymore.That`s about it...

I have never had a problem understanding your english; comes across loud and clear. I am sorry but I never followed Buffy; it was always on when I was not available but I know many who love the show.The Transformer album; boy it has been a long time since I sat for that album. I like his song," The Last Great American Whale."Perfect Day; why is he not good? Why does he rejoice to feel for a moment like he is something good?And what is it he will reap; the realisation that the end of the Perfect Day will result in a return to the dark reality of his life?

Maybe this old Reed/Velvets song is "another side" of the Perfect Day?

Damir; you didn't have to post the lyrics to that song; I have them committed to memory. The whole Any Warhol album spent endless hours on the table here. Heroin, All Tommorrows Parties, I'll Be Your Mirror; you name it I'll give you those lyrics straight from my head. They are burned into this brain from all nighters with the 8-track on repeat.One of the all time great albums; turn it up..I like a Rising sound!Do you read Hunter Thompson?

VU - yes, the same thing with me - the whole first album... I liked the 2nd, too, even others (without John Cale). I used to play some songs, more guitar-oriented (at least, my versions:-)).I didn`t turn on my blackface "Deluxe Reverb" for about a year, and play the guitar very rarely, but funny thing - yesterday I played "White Light/White Heat" (just pling-plong, without amp)... HT - no, just a little.

Thats good. See you were bored because your mind was telling you that you wanted to play guitar again; funny how the mind works. What Guitar do you use?I am a big Leslie West fan, the band "Mountain".

No, I think I was bored of guitars and music and tubes and amps and politics and work , and books, and whatever not.I have Fender "Ultra Stratocaster" and two basses, Fender `57 reissue Precision (EMG PU), and "Lado" Custom 5-strings (Bartolini PUs + electronics). Acoustic bass 220 head + 406 bass box (2x15"EVM15L), guitar amps - "Deluxe Reverb" and silverface "Vibrolux", and "Mesa/Boogie" Studio Preamp... Plus whole lot of studio equipment, 8-ch "Adat" based, "Mackie" 16 ch mixer, etc.I have only JBL 4208 "monitors", sold my Genelecs, "Kurzwail" synth, etc. OK - I don`t record and play, that`s it.Huh, can we finish it now and "pass over" on some other perverse theme?:-)
